THE EVENING STAR. ITEMS OF INTEREST. WASHINGTON:

MONDAY......July 11, 1887. CROSBY S. NOYES......Editor. The Evening Star bas a regular, permaner bonn fide daily circulation more than trebie that of any other daily paper published in Washington, and much greater than that ef all the other daily papers here added Those who leave the city during the summer can have The Star mailed to them for any length of ime, and the address changed as often as desired. The subscription must be invariably paid in ad-

A weak effort is being made by the partisan papers to create capital against their political oponents out of the case of Harvey, the lately exosed dishonest Treasury clerk. On the one side it is asserted that he is a democrat, and, having been appointed by a democratic administration, that organization is responsible for his rascalities. On the other hand, it is stoutly asserted that he never was a democrat; that he acted with the mugwumps in the last Presidential election, but that he always has been and still is a republican

This is an exceedingly narrow and hardly credi table treatment of the subject. It does not touch the root of the matter, and will fall very far short of satisfying the people of the country, whose noney has been stolen. The real point in the case lies in the circumstances attending the appointment of the rascally official. It is stated on apparently good authority that at the time of his appointment strong protests were made against the roposed action by prominent and influential democrats of Pennsylvania, whose opinions and wishes were entitled to respect by those in authority. Is this true? And if so, upon what grounds was the appointment opposed? There must have been formal charges filed, or some reasons assigned; and, in view of the active objections made to it, it beomes a matter of public interest to know why and under what circumstances a man so manifestly objectionable and unfit for it was put in a position of responsibility and trust. This is the feature of the case that needs elucidation. It makes very little difference which ticket he voted.

The English conservatives have had their way concerning the coercion bill, and have obstinately ished the measure, with the aid of boiting liberals, until it will soon be a law. In effect they arises: "What will they do with it?" Will they take warning from the returns in the Spalding North Paddington and Coventry elections, or will they attribute their losses to other issues than the Irish question, depreciate the lesson of bye-elections, give to Ireland its threatened flogging and abide results? The conservative reverses in dislation as those which have recently voted can hardly be explained except upon the theory of some general cause of dissatisfaction with the government's course. The suggestion of local issues will not suffice. An explanation, ignoring the home-rule question, which will account for the liberal victory in the Spalding district of Lincoinshire will not meet the case of the heavy conservative losses in the strong tory borough of North Paddington or the conservative defeat in thol Coventry. At Coventry on Salurda the Gladstonian candidate was elected by a majority of 16 votes. In June of last year the conservative candidate was elected by a majority of 425, and in the general election of December, 1885, without the aid of bolting liberals, the conservatives carried the borough by a majority of 239. The London Post, a supporter of the government, perceives from these returns that the recently submerged Gladstone is getting his head above water, but thinks that the lesson taught is the necessity, not of mercy and justice, but of "stronger measures with regard to Ireland." If these reverses give the energy of desperation to the attempted enforcement of the coercion law instead of rendering the conservatives timid, atter experiences seem to be threatened both for the Irish and for the steadily weakening governent which for a short time may wield the lash.

King Kalakaua has accepted the inevitable, it appears, and made a change of ministers in deference to the demand of the Hawaiian populace. The news, however, which comes from Honolulu by way of San Francisco should be accepted with eaution. In passing through our chief Western port it is liable to receive a slight tincture of preckelsism. The sugar king realizes the value of a favorable press notice as well as the next man. and the accounts of a revolution in which he has a hand or an interest are likely to be colored to suit the eye of the American reader. The main facts may be correctly stated, but the inferences may not be those which an unprejudiced student of the situation would draw for himself.

The President is reported to appreciate the crying need or a post-office building for Washington; to have decided to make a special recommendation to Congress on that subject next winter; and to desire to appoint as the new postmaster a competent local democrat. All Washington will hope that these reports are true, that the suggested recommendation of a post-office building will not be forgotten, and that the President's desire to find and appoint some competent citizen of the District to the local postmastership may be gratified. In spite of several forcible hints to the contrary the District is still firm in the opinion that it contains men fit to fill the local offices.

Virginia City, Nevada, is said to be gradually sinking into the earth, the supports left in her great mines not being strong enough to continue to hold her weight. A good many unfortunate eculators on the San Francisco Stock Exchange who happened to be caught on the wrong side of the Bonanza flurries, will wish that the city had been swallowed up long ago.
